

Spring FE R&D Annual Project Review Meeting

Friends and Colleagues:

After much consideration, the National Energy Technology Laboratory (NETL) has decided to change the format of the Spring FE R&D Annual Project Review Meeting, which was scheduled for August 2020. NETL has assessed the current environment relative to the COVID-19 pandemic and has decided that the best course of action is to revise the meeting format for this year. The safety of all those participating in the event was the major factor in making this decision.

NETL has decided to conduct a series of virtual meetings, which will occur sometime between mid-August and late October. NETL is in the process of developing the meeting mechanics and technical requirements and will reach out to all stakeholders in the coming weeks. Although the physical in-person meeting has been postponed, NETL is reviewing several options that will enable you to present an update on your work. Alternatives such as program specific topical webinars, virtual presentations, or posting of presentation materials are being discussed and evaluated. NETL values the work that you are doing and would like to get an update from you in whatever way is safe and practical while maximizing engagement.

As information becomes available, NETL will share that information with you. We appreciate your understanding and support.
